Scheduled gatherings this month include our normal gathering in Greenville at the Buffet Palace on August 1st at 6PM and August 15th at Napoli's Restaurant in Wylie at 6PM. Stop by and visit with us.

We're glad to be back in Texas for a while although the recent heat wave has been oppressive. Be aware of heat issues while riding and take steps to minimize its effect by taking frequent breaks and staying hydrated.

Numerous rally/ride-ins are scheduled for late summer. The Eagle Wings Rendezvous in Knoxville, TN August 31-September 2 is the first national event for the new organization. This is the same location as Wing Ding 40 in 2018. Closer to home is the next Texas District Ride-in at Glen Rose, TX on September 20-23 followed by the Capitol Wings Ride-in at Lufkin TX on October 11-15th. Oklahoma District (Wing'd Riders) Rally will be October 26 - 29, 2023 in Ponca City, OK Details for all these events are available at the link in the last sentence of this article. All of them sound like a good time with great rides planned by the organizers.

The Wing'd Rider organization held their first national event in Litchfield, IL last month which George attended. Regardless of which organization(s) you may have aligned with, our goal is to further relationships with like-minded folks involved with motorcycling. All the current / planned organizations are in their infancy.

The Eagle Wings Motorcycle Association website continues to improve with greater functionality. It now contains a lot of information about the inaugural Eagle Wings Rendezvous including the latest schedule of events, two guided rides and six self-guided rides complete with .pdf and .GPX file downloads for a GPS. Poke around the site and I think you'll find some interesting developments. I'm unsure about the member search at this time since I didn't show up as a member in the search results but sent a message to the administrators to investigate. The latest District newsletter is available here at <http://www.gwrra-tx.org/news/newslettersEW.php>. The newsletter has the latest updates for the district and most of the flyers for rallies in the area.

I know most people are thinking, Is this summer hot or what? I was just thinking, what do I have in store for this July/August article? We all have the same interest in traveling, so here we go. My co-rider and [I] decided to try a different excursion this year via our RV from Granbury, Texas up the east side of the Rockies through Colorado, Wyoming, [and] Montana. The northernmost point was Banff Canada (Banff Natl. Park) and to Jasper, Canada to see the Ice Fields in the mountains. On our return we went west through Washington State and on to Coos Bay, Oregon, RV park right on the beach. We then traveled to Crescent City, Calif. to see the Redwood Forest. There is so much beauty if we just take the time to enjoy it! Back through Idaho, Utah, New Mexico and back to the house. One week after our return, our Chapter P (Pleasure Riders) from Granbury, Texas left on a group ride up to Yellowstone and additional stops along the way. There were 8 bikes and 14 riders. These trips made me think, do we have members within our Eagle Wings Organization who are also RVers? I have heard a lot of GWRRRA members sold their bikes and are traveling in their RVs. The District Ride-In September 20-23 is one way we can bring these two interests together. We plan to stay in the Oakdale RV Park in Glen Rose for the Ride-in and welcome anyone interested to join us! This may be a way of saving some of our Eagle Wings members—just a thought.

Bottom line, I hope a lot of members are having as much fun as my lovely wife and I are this summer!!! Any questions or anything I can assist with give me a call. Till next month, RIDE SAFE AND RIDE OFTEN!!!!

“Summers are hot in Texas, Can't squeeze a drop of rain, Gotta keep this noggin covered, Or the sun will cook my brain!” Milton Toran

Texas is sure enjoying the summer heat! After being trapped on the inside enjoying air conditioning but thinking continuously of how much I enjoy riding the motorcycle, I realize [that] my days of riding in 100 plus degrees are limited. As Clint Eastwood once said in one of his movies, “A man's gotta know his limitations.” It is a fact that as we get older, our tolerance for heat, cold, dehydration, and other age-impacting situations becomes more limited depending on how quickly we are aging. After our last chapter Zoom call, there were folks like Christy and Eddie Roberts who had just written down from Yellowstone in the scorching heat and did so with a smile, while I myself simply walk out to my pergola and do a little woodworking, then find myself desperately needing a nap and a couple hours in the cool. We do all need to know what our bodies will let us do, especially when we do it on a motorcycle. I am certainly not complaining. I spent the first 38 years of my life living in Chicago dreading the never-ending winters. I knew fully that my dad's motorcycle, sat in the garage awaiting a break in the weather that sometimes came in late April. In Texas it is the dead of summer in July, August and sometimes a little of September where we have to be much more careful. Hydration is much more important to me today than it ever has been. And any trips out into the summer heat will require me bringing at least a gallon of water with me to keep my losses at Bay. I encourage you to know your limitations and act within them to keep you and your loved ones safe.

As for the EWMA organization, communications have been rather sparse, with most of the communications being about the upcoming Rendezvous in Knoxville, Tenn. We continuously encourage people to attend if time and money allows. The riding and the roads are spectacular and should be well worth the time, and it will be interesting to see the number of attendees across the country who make the trek. For those unable to make that long journey, there are a couple of them coming up within Texas borders which should also be an opportunity to see new roads, meet new friends, and, as most of this is happening in late September early October, beating the heat. The Capital City Wings will be hosting a ride in out of Lufkin, Texas October 11th through the 15th. Jim and Deedee Evans are working hard to plan a series of rides and destinations in the Lufkin—Huntsville area that is sure to be a great time. September 20th through the 23rd, the District will be hosting a ride in out of Glen Rose, Texas for the same purpose but a different landscape that should also be a welcome escape from this long summer. Eddie Roberts from Chapter P in Granbury has been planning rides focusing on this area. The game plan for both is having 50/50 drawings each night, and food provided on the first evening. The cost to attend is nothing. You got that right, free! We only ask that you bring enough cash to buy a few 50/50 tickets where most of the proceeds will go to the attendees in the form of prizes. Getting back to the Eagle Wings Rendezvous in Knoxville that is being held August 31st through September 2nd, the Convention Center in Knoxville will be renting it out for this rally. This will be the first National/ International event in EWMA history. Definitely something to put on the calendars if you're able.

Definitely enjoy your July and August, while doing so safely. Keep up your health, writing skills, and willingness to get together with others sharing the same love of motorcycles that we all have. God bless.

Hydration (What Is It All About?)

By Tom Sprague

Well is it hot outside. You bet it is. Hydration is all about keeping you alive. Your body is 70% liquid and drinking enough water is essential to good health. Dehydration comes in different forms. There [are] approximately three steps when experiencing dehydration. There is the mild form, then moderate, then severe. We will discuss each stage.

You may not be replacing the water you need for a number of reasons. Usually you get busy and forget to drink the water you might need. You may not realize you are thirsty and therefore not drink or you do not feel like drinking because you have a sore throat or maybe some mouth sores or you may feel a little queasy or sick to your stomach. All reasons to skip getting that drink of water you might need.

Symptoms or signs of moderate dehydration include the following. You may feel thirsty and you may have dry or sticky mouth. You may not pee very much or your pee is dark yellow. Your skin might be cool or dry to the touch. You may be experiencing a headache or muscle cramps.

Symptoms or signs of severe dehydration include the following. Again you are not peeing or the pee is dark yellow. You have a very dry skin and you may feel dizzy. Your heart beat will become more rapid as well as your breathing. Your eyes will be more sunken and you will experience sleepiness a lack of energy and confusion or irritability. Finally you will be prone to fainting. If you allow dehydration to reach the severe state you will need to seek medical help.

Suggestions on how to better hydrate yourself.

Setting a daily water intake goal can help you drink more water. Simply the act of setting a goal can be motivating and make you more likely to make positive changes that last. To be effective, goals should be SMART, which is an acronym for the following criteria:

- Specific
- Measurable
- Attainable
- Realistic
- Time-bound

For example, one SMART water-consumption goal might be to drink 32 ounces (960 ml) of water per day. It can also help to record your progress, which can keep you motivated to achieve your goal and make it a habit.

Keeping a water bottle with you throughout the day can help you drink more water. When you have a reusable water bottle, you can easily drink water in any setting, whether you're running errands, traveling, or at home, work, or school. Keeping a water bottle handy can also serve as a visual reminder to drink more water. If you see the bottle on your desk or table, you will constantly be reminded to drink more. Plus, it's better for the environment than relying on single-use plastic water bottles.

You can also set reminders to drink more water using an app or the alarm on your smartphone or smart watch. For example, try setting a reminder to take a few sips of water every 30 minutes, or set a reminder to finish drinking your current glass of water and refill it every hour. These reminders can help you increase your water intake, especially if you struggle with being forgetful or too busy to drink.

One way to drink more water and boost your health and reduce your calorie intake is to replace other drinks, such as soda and sports drinks, with water. These drinks are often full of added sugars, which can be extremely detrimental to your health. For optimal health, limit your added sugar intake to less than 5% of your calorie intake. Just one 8-ounce can of soda per day can exceed this limit. Diets high in added sugars have been linked to obesity and other conditions like type 2 diabetes and heart disease. Furthermore, replacing these sugary drinks with water is an easy and cheap way to cut calories, potentially helping you lose weight. Much of America can stand a little weight loss.

Another simple way to increase your water intake is to make a habit of drinking one glass of water before each meal. If you eat 3 meals per day, this adds an extra 3 cups to your daily water intake. Moreover, sometimes your body may mistake feelings of thirst for hunger. Drinking a glass of water before eating can help you discern whether you are feeling true hunger. What's more, if you're trying to lose weight, drinking a glass of water may help you eat fewer calories at the following meal.

In America, most tap water is safe to drink. However, if you have concerns about the quality or safety of your tap water, consider purchasing a water filter. There is a filter for almost every budget, from costly whole-home water filtration systems to inexpensive water-filtering pitchers. In addition, filtering your water could improve the taste. Point-of-use water filters, such as water-filtering pitchers or filters that attach directly to a faucet, can reduce levels of waterborne bacteria, lead, and arsenic in contaminated tap water to safe levels. Using a water filter is also less expensive and more eco-friendly than purchasing bottled water, which is oftentimes no different than tap water.

If you dislike the flavor of water, or just need a bit of flavor to help you drink more, you have many choices. Using an inexpensive fruit-infuser water bottle is one healthy option. Popular fruit combinations to use in an infuser bottle are cucumber lime, lemon, and strawberry-kiwi. You can use any combination of fruits that suits your taste. You can also purchase water enhancers in powder or liquid form to add to your water, but be aware that many of these products contain sugar, artificial sweeteners, or other additives that may harm your health. Remember from above, cut your sugar intake.

If you work a standard 8-hour workday, drinking a glass of water each hour you're at work adds up to 8 cups to your daily water intake. Fill up your cup as soon as you get to work, and at the top of every hour, simply drink the remaining water and refill. This method will keep your water intake consistent throughout your workday.

Sipping on water consistently throughout the day is another easy way to help you meet your fluid goals. Reaching for a sip of water consistently during your day will keep your mouth from getting dry and may even help keep your breath fresher. Keep a glass of water or a reusable bottle nearby and within your line of sight for a constant visual reminder to take a sip.

One simple way to get more water is to eat more foods that are high in water. Fruits and vegetables that are particularly high in water include:

- Lettuce: 96% water
- Celery: 95% water
- Zucchini: 95% water
- Cabbage: 92% water
- Watermelon: 91% water
- Cantaloupe: 90% water
- Honeydew melon: 90% water

In addition to their high fluid content, these fruits and vegetables are packed with vitamins, minerals, and antioxidants that promote your overall health.

An easy way to boost your water intake is to simply drink one glass when you wake up and another before you go to bed. A glass of cold water in the morning may help wake you up and boost your alertness. Plus, drinking water before bed can keep you from waking up with a dry mouth and bad breath.

The bottom line: Adequate water intake is essential to good health. The National Academy of Medicine estimates that most people need 90–125 ounces of fluid per day, including fluid from water, other beverages, and food. However, it can be difficult to drink water habitually, especially if you are busy, regularly forget to drink, or dislike the taste of water. Following some of the simple tips above can help you boost your daily water intake.

It is hot out there so drink some water.

My Trip To Illinois

By George S. Augustas

I made the trip to Litchfield, Illinois to attend the first Wing'd Rider rally. I left home at 0800 on Tuesday 27 June. The route was straight up Hwy 75 and 69 through Oklahoma. Rain was threatening. As I went across the bridge at Lake Eufaula (Canadian River), the wind was so strong that it blew my visor up. It almost blew me off the road. I think that if I had been on two wheels, it would have blown me over. I battled the wind and rain most of the way across Oklahoma, but I finally ran out of it.

The first stop was at Love's Travel Stop in Eufaula, Oklahoma for fuel and coffee. I usually avoid toll roads, but I decided to pay the toll to take I-44 into Missouri to make better time. (I think all Interstate highways should be toll-free.) I got to the hotel in Nixa, Missouri about four-fifteen. I got cleaned up and went to Lambert's Café for dinner.

The next day, I saddled up at 0900. I headed east across Missouri. The Garmin led me around St. Louis, which added about 20 miles. I got to Litchfield about two-thirty. After they got the room ready, I lugged in all the stuff from the trike, then I went over to Niehaus to check in. I had dinner at the Ariston Café.

Thursday, I headed over to Niehaus about nine o'clock. I missed the opening ceremonies, which were at the Litchfield Community Center. There were very few vendors. I made an appointment with the Pro-Shine vendor to get the trike cleaned and waxed. I bought a quart of coolant. They had one on-bike game in which one had to throw bean bags at a bucket whilst riding without stopping. That's easier to do on a trike because one doesn't need to balance.

About noon, it started looking as if rain was imminent. I headed back to the hotel to cover the trike and wait it out. Just as I got to the hotel, the wind picked up. It was too strong to put the cover on, so I drove the trike under the front entry of the hotel. Just then, I saw that the wind had blown over a yellow Gold Wing. I read later that a wind storm called a derecho had blown through. It went on into Indiana and knocked out some power lines. The wind speed had exceeded 80 mph—hurricane force.

The rain subsided by evening, and I went over to the community center for the advertised dinner. I left before the "music" started and came back to the hotel.

Friday was clear all day. I took the trike over to the Pro-Shine vendor to get it cleaned and detailed. I met Tony, a motorcyclist with no right leg. He has ridden 215,000 miles on his 2013 Gold Wing. He was considering getting a trike. We talked a long while. In the end, he decided to wait a while longer. He still enjoys riding on two wheels. I went back to the Ariston Café for dinner. I had dinner with Leo and Margaret Smith and the Rally Cats. It rained during the night.

On Saturday, I bought a new half cover at Niehaus. Rain threatened to cancel the parade. I came back to the hotel and covered the trike, then walked to Maverick's Steak and Ale next to the hotel for dinner. The parade got rained out.

On Sunday, I stayed at the hotel until it was time to go to the closing ceremony at the community center. They had the final prize drawings. (I didn't win.) They did not announce the total number of attendees, but I estimated that it was about 500. After the closing, I took a little scenic ride, then came back to the hotel. I went back to Maverick's for dinner.

Monday, I started for home. I came down I-55 through St. Louis, then took US-67 south to Little Rock. I had one little scare: on a two-lane section of the road, a car was overtaking another car, and he was right in my lane. I had to move onto the shoulder to avoid a collision. It was very hot, and I pulled into a Love's for a rest stop and some coffee. When I got back on the trike, I pushed the button that shows the air temperature, and it showed 118°F, but I think that was partly from engine heat. I got to Little Rock about four-thirty and had dinner at Cracker Barrel.

Tuesday, I left Little Rock about nine o'clock. There were scattered showers in Texas, but I did not stop. I got home about one-forty. Total mileage for the trip was 1,497 miles.

John Lazzeroni said that if we compare the rally to Wing Ding, try to compare it to Wing Ding #1. After all, it is the first one. Next year's will be better, he promised. It will be at the same location, but it will end on Saturday (one day earlier).
